Forest certificate, Bolivia

Trees in Rewilding projects in Bolivia are planted in collaboration with the Danish-Bolivian organization Food by Nature.

Issued the xx.xx.20xx

The trees can contribute to:

- Recreating more nature as close to its original composition as possible.
- Restoring biodiversity.
- Supporting the way of life of the Takana people, who live in and around Madidi National Park and make a living by collecting wild cocoa.
- Storing CO2 and counteracting global warming.
